1. Because of internal rivalries and dissension within the Polish anti-Communist element of Buenos Aires, a new group centering around the more recent immigrants has gained considerable influence in the Polish anti-Communist colony in Argentina.
2. La Agrupacion de los Obreros y Trabajadores Especializados Polacos en la Argentina (Organization of Specialized Polish Workers in Argentina) has recently been organized with temporary headquarters at Calle Corrientes 3972. This group is concerned with finding employment for newly arrived Polish immigrants.
3. A new Polish language anti-Communist weekly known as List z Europy i Polski (Letter from Europe and Poland) appeared in Buenos Aires in early January 1949. List z Europy i Polski is edited at the private home of Z. S. Tulpinski, a leader of Polish veterans now in Argentina. The editors of the newspaper are two former Warsaw journalists, Zdzislaw Bau and Roman Dabrowski. The paper has been concerned with exposing the activities of such suspicious personalities as Mieczyslaw Goraczko, described by Polish journalists in Buenos Aires as either a clever adventurer and swindler or a Communist agent provocateur.
4. Roman Dabrowski wrote for the paper Goniec Warszawski in Warsaw under the pseudonym of Romanski. Zdzislaw Bau formerly worked for the Express Poranny in Warsaw and was a war correspondent in London and in Italy with General Anders' army.
